ACCC Blackboard

Check out these two new education programs offered by Continuing Education Alliance on ACCC's Continuing Education Blackboard.

- Best Practices in Advanced Non-Small Cell Lung Cancer: Update on Pathologic Considerations and Treatment Selection and Duration | This program describes new recommendations regarding multidisciplinary approaches to non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) classification, as well as evidence-based strategies to optimize first-line therapy for the individual patient with NSCLC based on the results of pathologic analyses, the performance status of the patient, and the efficacy and safety of available cytotoxic and biologic agents. These factors, as well as the disease response to first-line therapy, form the basis for decision making regarding maintenance therapy. Earn CME credit through this program.
- Multiple Myeloma: Challenges for the Community and Academic Oncology Team | This learning activity reviews the evidence base for multiple myeloma treatment regimens; the factors influencing the selection and timing of induction therapy, maintenance therapy, and transplantation; and strategies for managing patients with treatment-related toxicities. Earn CME credit through this program.

ACCC Innovator Awards Sponsored by GE

ACCC is pleased to announce that GE Healthcare, a unit of General Electric Company, will sponsor the annual ACCC Innovator Awards, which honor member programs that have exhibited forward-thinking strategic planning and developed pioneering programs and replicable models. Entry deadline for the 2012 Innovator Awards submissions is March 20, 2012. See ad at left for more information. In 2011, ACCC presented 14 Innovator Awards to Cancer Program Members. Learn more about the 2011 award winners and their innovations at: www.accc-cancer.org/meetings/NOC2012-innovatorawards.asp.
