From the Editor-In-Chief

Welcome to ACCC's 3rd Annual Oncology Buyers & Resource Guide. In 2006, hospital-based cancer programs and oncology practices face many challenges, including average sales price, the Part D drug benefit, and the Competitive Acquisition Program. More than ever before, ACCC members need the tools and resources that will help them to effectively manage their programs—programmatically and financially.

Perhaps your hospital is looking to differentiate its cancer program from the competition through a facelift (see facility design, page 2) or by implementing a “one-stop shopping” approach to cancer care, in which case you may need the expertise of oncology consultants (page 3). Or maybe your practice is having difficulty purchasing drugs at less than ASP. If so, you may want to consider joining or switching your current GPO (page 9). Practices looking to diversify their service line may be interested in researching radiation equipment vendors (page 11). Whether your cancer program is hospital-based, freestanding, or a physician practice, ACCC's 3rd Annual Oncology Buyers & Resource Guide has the information you need today!

Readers will also note an important change in the 2005 Guide: the medical information technology systems category is missing! And no, we didn't misplace it—just the opposite in fact. Based on readership needs, this year we are publishing a separate “mini” IT resource guide in the next Oncology Issues (January/February 2006). Along with this IT resource guide, readers will find a series of articles about EMR implementation in the hospital setting. This series is part two of Oncology Issues in-depth look at EMR in community cancer programs. Part one—EMRs and oncology practices—was featured in the July/August 2005 Oncology Issues.

Of course, part of the challenge of publishing a Buyers Guide is the risk of leaving out some good companies and products. If we missed you this year, I apologize and ask you to contact Mal Milburn (301.984.9496, ext., 252) so we can include you next year.
